Graduate Student Employees and Adjunct Professors: The Case for Collective Bargaining

Laura Moore

Graduate Student Government
President
University of Maryland

Laura Moore is a master's student in entomology and President of the Graduate Student Government. After graduating from MIT, she served as an officer in the United States Navy and then pursued a successful career in Information Technology. A developing interest in the environment and sustainability led her to change directions and after working at Patuxent Wildlife Research Center, she enrolled at the University of Maryland. Her studies have focused on natural insect control in agriculture. Now in her second term as GSG President, Laura has been dedicated to advocating on behalf of the graduate student population on issues including cost of living, housing availability and safety, teaching workload, and academic standards.
